Presidency of Adams

Election of 1796

Adam's Experience

International Conflict

Election of 1796

Anti-French Attitude

- Many French refugees left home country to escape the war & settled

Alien & Sedition Acts

- Made it illegal to publicly disagree with the US government

- Jefferson and James Madison urged governments to refuse to enforce the Alien & Sedition Acts
- Violated First Amendment rights (freedom of speech & press)
- Virginia and Kentucky believed states had the right to determine if a federal law was unconstitutional
- 1798 → Virginia and Kentucky passed legislature that declared the Alien & Sedition Acts unlawful
- Began the idea of nullification and states' rights

- Passed June 1798

- 1800 → Adams had little support
- Fighting with France had ended, but Federalists in Congress wanted war with France
- Americans were angry because the Alien & Sedition Acts were unconstitutional
- Adams lost election of 1800

PowerPoint presentation to facilitate discussion- 9 slides

Alien & Sedition Acts

- Made it illegal to publicly disagree with the US government.
- Someone who wrote, spoke, or published anything "false, scandalous and malicious"
- Adams was given power to decide if someone committed treason against the US government
- Democratic-Republicans and their supports were targeted because they printed newspapers and pamphlets that opposed the Federalist controlled Congress
- Over 20 Democratic-Republican newspaper editors were imprisoned

First page of manuscript that defines the crime of treason and to define and punish the crime of sedition c.1798
