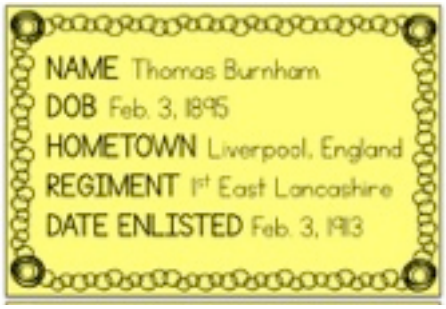
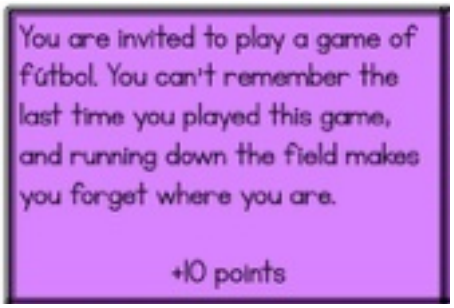
During this simulation students will experience what it was like to be a soldier fighting in the trenches on the Western Front during World War I.
Students will discover their fate in a variety of ways.

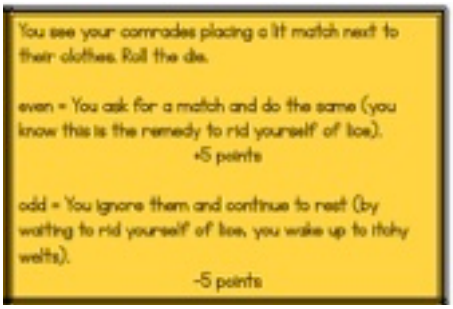
First, students assume a soldier's identity.



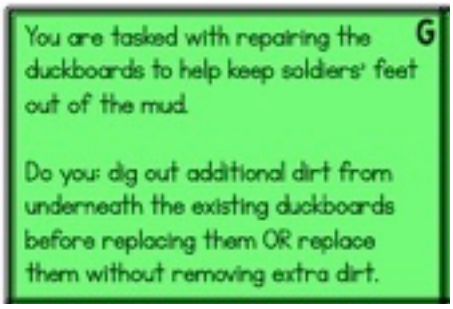
Sometimes students will draw a card that tells them their fate.



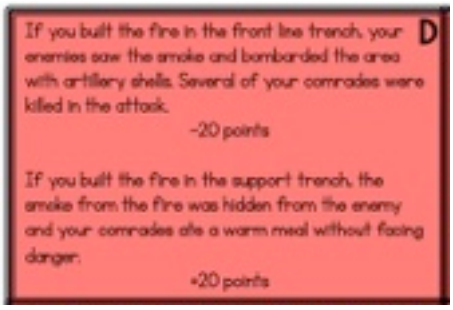
Sometimes students will roll a die.



Sometimes students can make a free choice.



When students make a free choice, they then find the corresponding choice card to see their fate.



There are multiple combinations of outcomes, so students can play through the simulation many times!
